Thousands Are Daily Joining the Boston American's $1,000 Contest

Are you cashing in on your fighting instinct?

Here's a chance to let off a lot of that brute steam sizzling in you and capitalize the release.

The Boston American's Cross-Word Puzzle Contest, now on its seventh day, gives you that opportunity.

Take that fighting instinct idea in connection with crossword puzzles, particularly the Boston American's variety, on the authority of a university professor.

State Dean James L. Lough of New York University.

The present slogan for cross-word puzzles is merely one manifestation of the modern mind's desire for combat.

What fate really does is to work off a little of their primitive nature's fighting on the dictionary, instead of letting their savage energy out on the head of a person who crawls them in the subway.

AD AND TO PEACE.

There's no denying that explanation. Work on the daily crossword puzzle makes for peace in any family.

A South Boston judge read the foreword explanation and put it into practice the other day. A married couple who had been together for ten years, but who had been fighting like cats and dogs, were called into court.

The couple had been before the same court several times. Well, that judge, after listening to the stories of the complaints and the place of the complaints, thought a while. Suddenly he reached under his desk and pulled out a copy of the Boston American.

He handed it to the wife and said: "You're both troubled by a superabundance of fighting instinct. That's all. The idea is to get that out of your system. I strongly advise you two to go home and work on the crossword puzzle. It's one of those alleged affairs and can make much of a dent."

Acting on the professor's suggestion, if you get hot under the collar at what seems to be a crossword puzzle, just pull out an American crossword puzzle and challenge him to combat over it.

Aside from the jangling on this matter, the crossword puzzle has made quite a stir all over New England.

Thousands are coming in daily.

Two riddled by bullets from the rear of the bootleggers.

A complete confession, the police said, was made by WITTED VANNOSE, who was badly wounded during the fighting, and later taken to the office of Dr. J. V. Thust.

The latter gave him preliminary treatment and then took him to St. Vincent's Hospital. There two bullets were removed from his body.

Colonel Albert Paine and Captain Thomas Hugg of the State Police, appeared to be Chief of Police of New Bedford, and also State Detective George O. Mansfield and Frank Fleming to investigate the latter.

Van nose named three other men, as his henchmen, companions, the police say.

This is the story Sergeant Lawrence Murphy of the New Bedford police says Van nose told him.

"We got word that a junk dealer was going to load up a lot of liquor down near Crescent Beach, so we got there at about 10 o'clock in the morning and about 3 o'clock we started for the place.

Gifts Tell Secret JACKSON TO BE TESTED FOR INSANITY

settle, declare him to have been mentally unbalanced when he misappropriated the funds and attempted suicide.

For some days the police have been in possession of a warrant for Jackson's arrest, intending to serve it on his release from the hospital.

This was originally planned for yesterday, but at the last minute hospital physicians decided Jackson's condition did not warrant his discharge, which was postponed to Monday.

The former street railway official, who was placed in a mental hospital in connection with his wife, Mrs. Iola E. Jackson, against whom he started divorce proceedings, showed no signs of insanity in the hospital, it was stated.

"He doesn't appear any more unbalanced than some other men who come into the hospital, said a physician. "Every man who attempts suicide is in some sense when he makes the attempt."

Hospital officials were surprised when they learned that alternate would make an examination of Jackson to determine his sanity.

If the insanity defense is put forth it will probably mean a long delay in the trial, which is expected to start in the latter part of the month.

The police had expected to remove Jackson to the Charles Street Jail in conformity with law, and arraign him in court Monday morning. As the attorney who is expected to represent the self-inflicted disaster on his own with them, the City Hospital officials decided not to release Jackson until that time.

In the meantime Attorney-General Jay E. Benton, who is conducting an extensive investigation into the Jackson case, is waiting for the report of the insanity commission. He expected this will be submitted Monday, and may result in State prosecution of the former street railway official.

The warrant held by Police Inspector Thomas Twine was based on evidence that Jackson had been in the Eastern Mutual Insurance Company.

and another call for firemen was sent in.

On the first floor of the house were Louis Bitter, owner of the building, and his wife and four children, Alida, Mary, Yolanda and Gladys.

William J. Prentiss and his wife and two children were in bed on the second floor when the fire started.

Seizing such clothing as they could carry the two families got to the street and found refuge behind the house of neighbors.

On the second alarm the entire Everett Fire department turned out to fight the flames which caused damage estimated at $25,000.

Reinforcing was taken to the Lynn Hospital, where he was treated for exposure, and then went home.

The police planned to raise the truck from the river by means of a derrick.

FAULKNER TO FAULKNER PROTEST MEETING

RIGHT FOR RETIREES TO TOILETS

Malden District Residents Up in Arms Over Substitution of Buses

A mass meeting to discuss the demand for restoration of street car service at Paulkline will be held tomorrow evening, December 28, at Daniel School Hall, Daniels street and Eastern avenue, Malden.

Announcement to this effect was made today by Lewis Hammer of the protest committee. He stated a large attendance was expected. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock, and starting at 8:30 will be a discussion of the situation. The board of directors of the Malden District, consisting of Mayor Kimball, Aldermen Huggins and Albertson, and Councilman W. T. Adams, are expected to attend. The protest committee is headed by Lewis Hammer, and includes Harry G. Foster, Charles H. Foster, and William Miller.

LOST EXTRA FARES.—Where passengers who rode directly to West station to and from work, said Mr. Hammer, they are now being forced to pay an extra fare of 10 cents for the transfer to the bus. This is a hardship, as the bus is crowded and the transfer is a nuisance.

PREDICT AN EXODUS.—Predictions that with the arrival of winter weather there will be a general exodus of the residents of the section, are heard on every hand. The Malden Elevated is spending a district it has taken a quarter of a century to build, declared Mr. Newman, a business man of Ruffalo place, Malden. Many women and girls who are forced to depend on the "L" to take them to and from work every day are as impatient over the substitution of the service as the business men.

NEWSPAPER OWNERS RENEW MAIL PROTEST.—Washington, Dec. 27.—Protesters against increases in postal rates, in a letter to the postmaster, renewed their protest against the proposed increase in postal rates. The letter stated that the proposed increase would result in a loss of revenue to the government of $100,000,000 a year.

GALE AND FLOODS SWEEP OVER BRITISH ISLES.—London, Dec. 27 (A.P.)—A fierce gale, accompanied by heavy rain, has been sweeping the United Kingdom, leaving a trail of wreckage and floods. Shipping has been seriously hampered by terrific seas and several vessels have been reported in distress. In the English Channel the waves were thirty-five feet high and many sailings between England and the continent were cancelled. The continental air service was stopped because of the heavy weather. Among the rivers in flood are the Thames, Severn, Wyre, and others. In the lowlands have been substantial and dwelling houses were washed.

Secrets of Health
By Dr. C. A. L. Reed
"I've been out for a walk to get a little pure oxygen," I hear some one say.
"I've been up in the mountains for some weeks," another declares.
Of course, some is only another form of oxygen, and oxygen is necessary to keep the fire of your system burning. That's the way you keep up the heat that is necessary for your life.
It is in precisely the same thing that goes on the fire before which you warm your shins. The flame, whether from gas or wood or coal, is really a flame from oxygen. If you shut off the oxygen by smothering it, the flame goes out.
The air, the flame is immediately extinguished.
And so it would be with you in about three minutes if all air were shut out of your system—if you actually breathe—for that length of time.
Don't try it, for your fire would go out, which means that you would be dead.
But where does the oxygen come from?

By Dr. C. A. L. Reed
"Why, the air, of course," you answer.
"How does it get into the atmosphere?" is the next natural question.
Science now points to facts which indicate that if man were not surrounded by green plants he would have to asphyxiate to breathe.
Professor Varodsky, the distinguished called Russian scientist, is a lecturer at the University of Prague, has contended that plants give off oxygen as a product of the action of light in burning not only their green coloring matter, called chlorophyll, but other of their substance.
There are no known changes in the crust of the earth that produce oxygen, but any number of them that consume oxygen.
I've known because, because you suddenly contended that if it were not for plant, free oxygen in the atmosphere would have been consumed to extinction.
QUESTIONS ANSWERED
Why do some people's vociferations and today? I hear a child who has been vaccinated twice and it does not "take" as they are called for the first time vaccinated and get "taken" to that they are probably due to the fact that some people are born with a natural immunity against the disease and vaccination is not therefore necessary.
Please tell me what will take the heat off my face? Kind Reader,
We do not recommend solid preparations in this column.
Are forty-nine years of age, am troubled with constipation. I am put pills in the stomach after eating and also am doing. Please tell me where I can get my teeth X-rayed in Boston.
What you need is a physical examination, as soon as possible. And I will advise you where to go to have your teeth X-rayed.
